1 2	An act to develop a sewage system and water protection program in developing countries.
3 4	Be it hereby enacted by the General Assembly of the United Nations
4 5 7 8 9 10 11	Justification Clause: In Egypt, 97% of their water supply comes from the Nile River. Many water treatments and filters have failed to provide a healthy supply of drinking water. Unfortunately, as Egypt's economic developments have increased, there are no sewage and filtering systems in place to safely dispose of human and industrial waste. Because of the lack of proper disposal, much of the waste is getting dumped directly into the Nile polluting this water source for many Egyptians and other around the world. This proposal will mandate the developing countries' governments and new industries receive a tax deduction for investing in water treatment and sewage facilities.
12 13 14 15	Section I: Upon request for a building permit, the Egyptian Environmental Affairs Agency (EEAA) and/or a local government agency will approve building plans regarding their waste water treatment plan and inspect final operational system.
16 17 18 19	Section II: This proposal would allow developing countries' governments and new industries to apply for a 10% wastewater treatment tax deduction.
20 21 22 23	Section III: Countries' environmental protection agencies (such as the EEAA) will develop strategies such as developing low cost clean technology, bring awareness to each industrial sectors' water quality problems and solutions, and focus on environmental, economic, and human health benefits of wastewater treatment.
23 24 25 26	Section IV: In order to insure this proposal is followed we recommend that the water authority monitors water quality and enforces the water quality regulations in accordance with government standards.
27 28	Section V: This programs cost will depend on the industrial growth in that region.
29	Section VI: This proposal will go into effect with the beginning 2015 fiscal year.
